Dear Sir:

RE: [REDACTED] v. [REDACTED]
Our File No. 2132.1
Your File No. 44214

Further to this matter I can advise that I do not have instructions to speak to the media, and have advised my client against same.

Meanwhile, I would ask that you provide your clients' names in order that we might take the necessary steps to add them as parties to the action, as our client is determined to achieve custody and care of his son. Unless your clients are prepared to relinquish the child, it appears that broadening the action is required in order that your clients may become full participants in the matter. Furthermore, I would request a copy of the document purporting to give your clients care of the child.

In the interim, are your clients willing to agree to establishing a schedule of visitation between our client and the child? If your clients have concerns about our client's parenting capacity, we would appreciate hearing them in order that we might reply or otherwise demonstrate our client's suitability.

We look forward to hearing from you.

Yours truly,

ROE & COMPANY
